Main Ingredient

Natural Sources

Dietary Sources:

Animal products: Red meat (beef, lamb), fish (cod, salmon), poultry, dairy.

Minimal in plants (trace amounts in avocado, tempeh).

1950s: Scientists uncovered carnitine's pivotal role in fatty acid metabolism, specifically its function in transporting long-chain fatty acids into mitochondria for β -oxidation, a critical process that converts fats into cellular energy (ATP). This discovery established carnitine as an essential "shuttle" molecule for energy production.

Carnitine

Main Ingredient

Sodium Hyaluronic acid sodium, a natural moisturizing factor with excellent Sodium Hyaluronate moisture absorption and retention abilities, is one of the three key components of skin structure, along with collagen and elastin. Serving as a mediator that induces cell differentiation and growth, it acts as the switch for collagen regeneration, playing a role in wrinkle improvement and moisturizing effects. Sodium hyaluronate, by lingering in uneven areas where excess fat has been removed, enhances the contour and texture of the skin in those specific areas.

Main Ingredient

Adenosine is a naturally occurring nucleoside composed of adenine (a nitrogenous base) and ribose (a five-carbon sugar) linked by a glycosidic bond (chemical formula: $C_{10}H_{13}N_5O_4$). It is a central molecule in energy metabolism and cellular signaling. Energy Metabolism ,
Anti-inflammatory Action: Suppresses immune cell overactivation
